Interfaith Worker Justice has released a guide to congregations sponsoring Red Cross blood drives urging them to question Red Cross on treatment of its workers and its blood safety practices. Lance Rhines of OPEIU Local 459 says Red Cross is not bargaining in good faith with its workers around the country.

[Rhines]: “We’re only asking that the Red Cross treat us fairly. We believe it will be fair and good for workers and it will also be good for the Red Cross and the American public blood supply.”
