A New Union: Political Action

The Honorable Andrew Gillum, 2018 Democratic nominee for Florida governor, kicked off the last day of OPEIU's convention outlining three key takeaways for delegates: 1) don't let people put limits on you; 2) our opponents' attacks are measured by how strong we are; and 3) "there's too much at stake" in 2020 to sit on the sidelines. "Talk to mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers and make them realize what's at stake," he said. Sharing stories about his mother, a former union bus driver in Miami, Gillum reinforced his strong commitment to labor. "I am a true and committed friend of labor," he said. "Good union jobs provide access to healthcare and dignity in the workplace. Labor is the unapologetic voice for working people."

"We gotta get to work!" — Andrew Gillum
