OPEIU Activists Get Organized and Fight For Economic Justice

Local 32 members stand up for their rights and win!

OPEIU members throughout the country are organizing to make a difference in their workplaces and communities. Here, hundreds of Local 32 members employed at Horizon Blue Cross Blue Shield of New Jersey traveled to the state capital in Trenton and successfully stopped a state measure that would have meant layoffs and cuts at the bargaining table.

You Are What You Do…

By Richard Lanigan, President

Carl Jung, the Swiss psychiatrist, coined the phrase “you are what you do, not what you say you are going to do.” This quote has been used as a yardstick to measure the credibility of the person who has spoken of his or her aspirations. How, then, do we measure the effectiveness of our elected leaders, by what they say or what they do?

During the 2016 presidential campaign, there was much discussion about making the needs of the American worker a priority of government. While OPEIU endorsed Hillary Clinton, we heard much about how the new president would bring favorable change for working Americans. Many of us wait in the hope that such change will come. At the eight-month point, with one-sixth of the term completed, it seems like a good time to invoke Carl Jung and ask: Have this administration’s policies, initiatives and proposed legislation improved the circumstances for working Americans and their families? Have those promises made during the campaign remained words or are they now accomplishments? To help answer these questions, let’s look at what has been accomplished and what has been proposed.

First, there was a commitment to create a tax plan favorable to working Americans. A tax plan has been proposed, however, that includes a provision eliminating the tax deferred status of an employee’s contribution to his or her 401(k) plan, the primary retirement account used by millions of working Americans. Fourth, the administration’s tax plan would eliminate the policy of favorable status for those paying mortgage interest. This policy encourages homeownership and is basic to the American Dream. It has supported Americans working in the real estate and construction industries for decades.

Why would the proposed tax plan remove a provision that has helped tens of millions of Americans afford a home? How does such a policy help American workers and their families?

Second, in June 2016, the U.S. Department of Labor issued its Fiduciary Rule that was to change the relationship between 401(k) savers and the people who manage their retirement savings. Prior to June 2016, the rule allowed investment managers to put their own interests before the interests of the 401(k) savers whose assets they were managing, occasionally resulting in investors paying exorbitant fees. The new rule would have put the interests of those saving for retirement above those of the investment manager. The administration has delayed the implementation of this crucial rule.

Third, there was a commitment to create a tax plan favorable to working Americans. A tax plan has been proposed, however, that includes a provision eliminating the tax deferred status of an employee’s contribution to his or her 401(k) plan, the primary retirement account used by millions of working Americans.

Lastly, in all of its different iterations, the recent proposed healthcare legislation would have taken away the health coverage of tens of millions of Americans. What was said during the campaign is a matter of record. Has there been any legislation proposed that would improve the lives of working Americans? At the eight-month point, does the new administration pass the Jung test? You decide whether you believe the administration passes this test. I have made my early evaluation.

OPEIU National Retirement Savings Plan to Launch in December

OPEIU’s national 401(k) program, known as the OPEIU National Retirement Savings Plan, launches in December and will provide members with a low-cost, feature-rich retirement savings solution through their employers. The OPEIU National Retirement Savings Plan is a better fit for union members, ensuring a reliable retirement savings option with very low fees.

Unlike traditional target date funds with a “one-size-fits-all” risk approach, the OPEIU plan’s investment options will be customized to each participant’s risk tolerance and target retirement date, with an emphasis on prudent and sound investing. Just as important, OPEIU’s plan will focus on lowering administrative fees.

The plan will also be more accessible than most, making it easier for members to manage their accounts and understand how the investment process works. “There will be member education for people to learn about investments, targeted investments, easy access, automatic enrollment, and automatic wage escalation with the union-designed plan. That way they have greater control over their accounts and can best optimize their retirement savings,” said President Richard Lanigan.

Talk to your local union for more information about the OPEIU National Retirement Savings Plan.

OPEIU Extends Defense Fund Benefit to Furloughed Government Employees

The OPEIU Executive Board approved a new defense fund benefit for public sector members, or employees of government subcontractors who are furloughed due to government shutdowns. Recently, both Maine and New Jersey furloughed their “non-essential” state employees due to each state’s failure to adopt a budget by the end of its fiscal year. Over the last several years, other states have resorted to similar measures to resolve budget disputes. This means state employees, through no fault of their own, have lost work and income for days they were ready and willing to work, but could not because the state closed its operations.

Therefore, the Executive Board has approved the extension of the strike benefit and defense fund to members employed by national or state governments who become furloughed as a result of a shutdown, which would be payable on the first day of the furlough.

“OPEIU and its local unions’ mission is to make our organization and resources available to members in times of need,” said President Richard Lanigan. “As more and more of our members face uncertainty because of these state budget battles, OPEIU will find ways to help.”
OPEIU Activists Get Organized and Fight For Economic Justice

Local 32 Members Defeat State Budget Initiative that Would Have Meant Layoffs

Employees at Horizon Blue Cross Blue Shield of New Jersey recently stood up and said “no” to a bill that would have imposed restructuring requirements forcing the company to become an “insurer of last resort,” a move that would have meant devastating financial repercussions for the company, leading to layoffs and deep salary and benefit cuts for the hardworking employees.

Because of their efforts and those of the New Jersey State AFL-CIO and Assembly Speaker Vincent Prieto, a compromise was reached ending the resulting three-day government shutdown and ensuring the people of New Jersey’s voices were heard. “The labor movement was adamant that policyholders and workers be protected,” said New Jersey State AFL-CIO President Charles Wowkanech. “The deal respects this fact and will not result in higher premiums and will direct surplus funds…back to subscribers.”

The measure, S4, would have forced Horizon into a quasi-charitable role that only it had to bear and put it at a serious disadvantage to other insurers in the state. More importantly, its employees and premium holders would have been the ones absorbing the cost of caring for non-policyholders.

The 1,000 members represented by Local 32 who work at Horizon didn’t sit idly by and let this measure pass. Instead, they filled buses and traveled to the statehouse in Trenton to protest the governor’s and state senate’s efforts. They streamed into the hallways and packed the assembly and senate budget committee hearings to make their voices heard. They carried signs that said “My Money, Not Yours,” “We Vote Too,” and “Protect My Health Insurance, My Insurer.” They circulated flyers protesting the politically motivated state takeover over the company that threatened the job security of thousands of employees. The measure also would have translated into exploding premiums and fewer services for the insurer’s 3.8 million subscribers.

Local 32 didn’t stop there! They successfully lobbied and achieved passage of a bill requiring back pay for state workers locked out during the state shutdown. Local 32 members received their back pay Sept. 1.

“This was an onerous and politically motivated move by Gov. Chris Christie and the senate that would have hurt innocent and hardworking employees of Horizon,” said International Vice President and Local 32 President Mary Short. “Creating unfair competition is not the way around the state’s fiscal crisis or the path to funding state programs that work for everyone in the state of New Jersey.”

The measure passed the state senate but stalled in the assembly before the compromise was reached. Local 32 President Short, Business Manager/Secretary-Treasurer Sharon Eastwick, Local 153 Senior Representative Seth Goldstein, Manager/Secretary-Treasurer Sharon Eastwick, International Bargaining Coordinator Sandy Popa and many of the local’s stewards and members worked diligently to achieve this great result. Thanks to all who lent their support during this three-day fight for what’s right, particularly the hundreds of Local 32 members who traveled to Trenton to make their voices heard!

Local 29 Goes to City Hall to Support Funding for Nonprofit Workers

Local 29 shop stewards, members and officers demonstrated solidarity and the activist spirit when they traveled to the San Francisco City Hall to advocate for a 2017-18 budget protecting the interest of union members and continuing city funding for nonprofit workers.

Meetings were scheduled with members and city supervisors who serve on the budget committee to discuss the funding concerns. A meeting was also held with labor and community stakeholders to discuss the Minimum Compensation Ordinance and OPEIU’s requested increases to pay for the union’s lowest paid workers.

“Everyone did a fantastic job talking to staff members in the city supervisor’s office about the need for a cost-of-doing-business increase to the nonprofits in the budget, which we can then pass along as wages to these low-paid workers, as we have done so successfully in almost every contract funded in that manner,” said International Vice President and Local 29 President/Business Manager Tamara Rubyn.

The 2017-18 budget was passed by the California Legislature and focuses on investment in education, counteracting the effects of poverty and improving the state’s transportation infrastructure. It includes an earned income tax credit for working families, raising of the minimum wage, and extension of health care to millions.

Local 100 Puts New Organizing Skills to Work

On behalf of Local 100's Board of Directors and membership, we would like to report that our efforts to again surpass our goal of 2,000 members has come to fruition. This has been no easy task and is attributable in large part to [the International's] vision of putting organizing at the heart of our work. The number of new organizing members in our ranks continues to expand and it is attributable in no small part to the hard work of our organizing committee.

We are not going to claim victory and return to our old familiar ways of organizing. We will continue support and vision, we will make our committee hits its stride and, with your help, we will have increasing membership numbers as well. It is only with wide and deep solidarity that we can accomplish this goal.

In solidarity,

Sharon Taylor
International Vice President and Local President

Nissan Campaign Thanks OPEIU for Support

Like all of you, I’m disappointed in the result from the election in Canton, Mississippi. As someone who thinks that it is critical—in the struggle for workers’ rights and for racial justice and meaningful democracy—to organize the South, this was a tough loss. I have nothing but admiration and respect for the many workers who fought long and hard for better lives for themselves and their communities and for a deeper, fuller democracy in Mississippi.

I wanted to thank you for your support of the workers in this campaign. In the incredibly hostile environment that is the U.S. workplace, it is critical to build and deepen solidarity that workers stand a chance of fighting back. It was clear to me that without the solidarity and support of the OPEIU, organizing efforts are hamstrung and that is not to the benefit of our organizing drive. That is doubly the case when organizing drive. That is doubly the case when organizing drive. That is doubly the case when organizing drive. That is doubly the case when organizing drive. That is doubly the case when organizing drive. That is doubly the case when organizing drive. That is doubly the case when organizing drive. That is doubly the case when organizing drive. OPEIU Introduces New Membership Benefit: Identity Protection

It has really paid to be a member of OPEIU in 2017! This year alone, OPEIU has introduced two new membership benefits: The Student Debt Reduction Scholarship to help members pay down their student debt, and the OPEIU Free College benefit, which provides free online courses to members to work toward an associate degree.

Now OPEIU is pleased to introduce 2017’s third new union benefit — identity protection.

Beginning Nov. 1, all OPEIU members will have a proactive, comprehensive defense against identity theft, at no cost to you. Your union has contracted one of the nation’s leading identity protection solutions, InfoArmor®, to protect members against this $16 billion crime that impacted almost 15.4 million Americans last year. With the recent data breach at Equifax that left more than 143 million Social Security numbers exposed, this type of protection is needed more than ever.

It’s important OPEIU members register with InfoArmor Nov. 1, or soon after, to receive all the available benefits. Register by visiting OPEIUIdProtect.com, or by calling 800-789-2720. Make sure to take advantage of this OPEIU benefit and register Nov. 1.

If you do become a victim of identity fraud, InfoArmor’s trained experts will help you to restore your identity as best as possible to what it was before the incident. This can save you hundreds of hours of your own time and productivity. It can also save you money!

Features of this benefit include:

Privacy Advocate® Remediation: InfoArmor’s privacy advocates are CITRMS® Certified experts in identity restoration. A privacy advocate will act as a dedicated case manager on behalf of the victim and resolve the issue from start to case completion.

Digital Exposure Report: This interactive, easy-to-read report summarizes what a real-time, deep Internet search finds out about a subscriber, offers a Privacy Grade and tips to better secure personal information.

Internet Surveillance: Internet Surveillance constantly monitors the underground economy and dark rooms to uncover compromised, sensitive information such as Social Security numbers, wallet items and login credentials including emails and passwords.

Activate your benefit for free at OPEIUIdProtect.com. You can also visit opeiu.org for more information. If you still have questions, call 855-990-0994.

Local 100 Family Member Awarded 2017 Union Plus Scholarship
Congratulations to Alexander Eirea, whose mother, Maria Eirea, is a member of Local 100 in Miramar, Florida. Alexander is one of 106 students representing 31 unions who has been awarded a $2,000 Union Plus Scholarship.

Alexander is a 2017 high school graduate who began college this summer at the University of Florida as a biomedical engineering major. He earned more than 50 hours of college credit through Advanced Placement (AP) classes in high school. Alexander appreciates the assistance unions provide employees, particularly as his mother is physically disabled. “My mother could be easily exploited by her employers and not given the same opportunities as everyone else,” he said. “The labor movement allows people like my mother to be able to find work so they can support their families and contribute to society in any way possible.”

A standout student in high school, Alexander was an AP Scholar, a recipient of the FIRST Tech Challenge Motivate Award (state) and Inspire Award (regional), lead programmer of the Cypress Bay Robotics Team, a tutor with the Mu Alpha Theta math honor society and the Science National Honor Society, a member of the Spanish Honor Society and a volunteer with the United Nations Children’s Fund (UNICEF).

The Union Plus Scholarship Program awards scholarships based on outstanding academic achievement, personal character, financial need and commitment to the values of organized labor. Visit UnionPlus.org/ Scholarship for applications and benefit eligibility.

The Union Plus Scholarships are another excellent benefit made possible only by your membership in OPEIU. It pays to belong to your union. OPEIU members and their families can apply now for the 2018 Union Plus Scholarship. The deadline is Jan. 31, 2018. Apply today: UnionPlus.org/Scholarship.

LOCAL UNION NEWS

Voting No Pays Off as Local 22 Nurses Hold Out for Better Contract

Nurses at St. Vincent Hospital in Little Rock, Arkansas, have proven sticking together and standing firm for a fair contract can reap big rewards.

Instead of accepting the employer’s attempt to strip the contract, the nurses stood strong and voted 95 percent in favor of rejecting the employer’s first contract offer. The bargaining committee then used this mandate to go back to the table and demand fairness, recovering almost all of what the company tried to eliminate from the contract and gaining very good wage increases, a labor-management committee and important past practices secured in writing. The final agreement was ratified Aug. 17 by 91 percent of the membership.

Local 22 represents more than 300 nurses at St. Vincent.

“We started this negotiation with a sincere interest in adding safeguards to our contract and protecting the nurses’ input. They also thought giving raises by taking thousands of dollars from the pay package of 20 percent of the nurses would settle the contract, even though it hurt so many.”

The hospital’s rejected offer also attempted to eliminate the union’s part of the labor-management shared governance body and to reduce those eligible for on-call pay.

The bargaining committee, comprised of Local 22 President Yates, who also serves as chair of the OPEIU Nurses Council; Chief Steward Charita Coleman and Steward Kims Teed, utilized text messaging and social media to engage members in the contract fight. This worked to build solidarity among the nurses and send a clear message to management that the union wasn’t going to back down.

“This contract is a testament to Local 22’s leadership, the bargaining committee and the hard work so many nurses showed in their opposition to the proposed concessions,” said International Bargaining Coordinator Randy Pope.

Local 8 Continues to Bring Benefits of Unionization to Non-Profit Workers

Northwest Justice Project employees voted overwhelmingly to form a union with Local 8 in Seattle, Washington, Aug. 22. The group of 163 attorneys, legal assistants, paralegals, receptionists, screeners and other employees join with thousands of Local 8 members in social service and healthcare organizations to improve standards for all non-profit workers.

The right to have a voice to ensure due process in layoffs, disciplines and terminations, livable wages and benefits, fair and consistent policies, and many other issues united NJP workers in their effort to form a union. “The staff at NJP do amazing work and deserve higher wages, but their unionization was about more than money,” said Local 8 Organizer Corinne Costenla.“They understood the difference bottom-up, democratic decision-making can make, and the power of joining together to be part of the larger labor movement.”

“Choosing this work and serving our clients has always given me a sense of kinship with my coworkers, but never more so than now,” said Abby Goidy, a NJP attorney. “Knowing there was an overwhelmingly favorable response to the formation of our union has re-energized me for our next steps.”

Northwest Justice Project is Washington’s statewide publicly funded legal aid program providing civil legal assistance and representation to nearly 30,000 low-income residents. These working people help keep families in their homes, advocate for children and adults with disabilities, ensure people gain access to medical care and much more.

Local 8 represents more than 6,000 members throughout Washington who work in many settings including offices, health and home care, housing, social services, the insurance industry, legal services and the public sector.
Local 8 Members Strike to Demand Labor Peace Now!

Employees represented by Local 8 at the Welfare and Pension Administration Service, Inc. (WPAS) have gone on strike as a result of tumultuous contract negotiations that began in September 2016. The employees, who have been working without a contract since February, are fighting to keep seniority that has been a provision in their contract for more than 40 years, cap the employee premium share for medical benefits and secure a fair retirement.

They’ve taken the battle to the streets, conducting a picket line and a “walk on the boss” during negotiations to deliver a message demanding “Labor Peace Now!” to WPAS owners from hundreds of members of the labor community who signed cards in support of the WPAS striking employees.

WPAS is a third-party administrator that specializes in processing pension and healthcare benefits for approximately 250,000 unionized members of more than 80 labor unions. Look for contract updates in future editions of White Collar.

Local 101 Has Game — and Lots of It!

Local 101 in Miramar, Florida, has been working diligently on behalf of their members employed by the City of Miramar, securing huge wage increases and retroactive holiday pay, successfully arbitrating job reinstatement and growing its membership like never before.

In August, members represented by the General Association of Miramar Employees (G.A.M.E.)/OPSEU Local 101 were awarded retroactive holiday pay for the period 2012 to 2015 at 3.5 times the hours worked, which translates to $280 to upwards of $11,000 for some members. In the past year, the local also negotiated a 26.5 percent increase for the years 2012 through 2018, the reinstatement of six members’ positions, helped elect a pro-labor mayor, Wayne Messam, and is currently working with the city to increase pension benefits for all members. “Local 101 believes in unity through efforts in the community and member events,” said President Jeremiah Edmond. The local has hosted barbeques, holiday parties, a back-to-school bookbag drive and other initiatives to build relationships with the community in which the members live and work.

Local 101’s most recent arbitration victory meant the reinstatement of Kisha Anderson, seated and pictured with members of the executive board, who had been dismissed from her job without just cause. The union rallied to regain her position, and, after nearly 10 months without working, she is back in a new position.

Local 277 Officers Attend Organizing Institute

International Vice President and Local 277 President/Business Manager Becky Turner and Recording Secretary Tyler Turner join other union leaders and activists at the Organizing Institute’s training in Austin, Texas. “It was so wonderful to meet new people and encouraging to see the effort that is being made by all unions to push organizing to the forefront,” Becky Turner said. “It was very informative and pushed both Tyler and me out of our comfort zones, which is a good thing and helps to keep us on our toes. We learned a lot, and we have all sorts of plans for targets in our area. This has helped us to begin to formulate plans and put a fire under us.”

Local 6 Court Reporters Reach Agreement to Ease Job Loss

Nearly two years ago, the court reporters were told they would be replaced by machines by June 30, 2016. Under their contract and Massachusetts labor laws, the trial court was obligated to bargain over the impact of these changes.

“We recognize the need of the court to improve its recording system, and believe they have a responsibility to ensure the integrity of the record for every victim seeking justice and every defendant whose liberty is at stake,” said Local 6 Business Manager George Noel. “But Local 6 equally has the responsibility to protect the court reporters’ interests and ensure they are treated with dignity, respect and humanity.”

Local 6 was able to reach an agreement that meant the position of official court reporter will not be eliminated until June 30, 2018, a two-year extension on the initial deadline. Some will have the opportunity to serve as court monitors, while the remaining members will have the option to apply for any posted positions, elect to be laid off or to retire. Local 6 is working to see passage of state House Bill 2537 that would provide trial court employees with a limited early retirement incentive program that acknowledges the dedication of these civil servants whose careers are being replaced by technology.

These court reporters are responsible to ensure every motion or trial is preserved in the most reliable way possible, and have been memorializing the spoken word in the Massachusetts courts since 1888. “We hope that what we’ve negotiated will help our members affected by these changes to find some closure and to make plans for the future,” Noel said.
Bargaining Opens at Cougar Helicopter Inc.

Negotiations have begun with Search and Rescue Cabin Crew (SAR CC) and pilots represented by OPEIU at Cougar Helicopter Inc. (CHI), located in St. John’s Newfoundland Labrador Canada. These OPEIU members work in some of the world’s worst weather conditions. The Cougar SAR pilots and cabin crew are currently negotiating for their second collective labor agreement. Dispatchers, weather observers and radio operators are now bargaining for their first union agreement. All three groups have negotiators selected from their different units and are assisted by Senior International Representative Patt A. Gibbs.

The three groups perform as a team in supporting Canada’s first marine search and rescue to save lives and transport workers to the various rigs operating off the most Eastern point of North America.

“These OPEIU members are committed to obtaining rates of pay, work rules and working conditions to improve the lives of their members by securing a fair contract that rewards and recognizes the stress and risk factors associated with this unique type of offshore flying,” said Gibbs.

Local 277’s Mark Gagliardi Honored

The Instituto Laboral de la Raza presented the National Community Services Award to the Shoot for a Cure team at the annual 2017 National Labor-Community Awards in San Francisco, California, earlier this year. National Event Chair Mark Gagliardi and Chair Emeritus Tim Hamann accepted the award on behalf of the team. Gagliardi is a longtime Local 277 member and its Western U.S. chief steward. When introducing Gagliardi at the awards dinner honoring him and the Shoot for a Cure team, International Vice President and Local 277 President/Business Manager Becky Turner said no one deserves the honor more than Gagliardi. Gagliardi has dedicated the last 14 years to raising money for the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society through the shoot, all while working as a public relations representative for American Income Life Insurance Company.

The team has raised hundreds of thousands of dollars to aid in the research for a cure for leukemia, lymphoma, myeloma and multiple sclerosis, among other related diseases. Through patron sponsors — OPEIU and Local 277 are two such sponsors — the SFAC team conducts clay shoot sporting events across the United States to raise money. One hundred percent of the money raised through these events goes to the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society for research. Turner and member Larry Lozano attended the dinner honoring Gagliardi and the SFAC team on behalf of Local 277.

Seton Hall University Employees Have a New Contract

A new three-year agreement was reached by Local 153 in New York at Seton Hall University, just before its July 1 expiration. The agreement includes a 2 percent wage increase for each year of the contract. The contract also includes a so-called “Me2” provision in the first and second year, meaning that if any other group or major subdivision of employees at the university’s schools or colleges receives greater than a 2 percent wage increase, the bargaining unit employees will receive such higher amount. Bargaining unit employees will continue to receive a length of service increment lump sum bonus worth as much as 1 percent each year of the agreement.

Healthcare premium contributions will stay the same in the same plan, provided they stay in the same plan and category for the life of the agreement.

The university is in the process of moving two departments, the School of Health and Medical Sciences and the College of Nursing, from the main campus to its new location in Nutley, N.J. The recognition provision of the agreement did not cover the new location. The negotiating committee was very compassionate in ensuring that 13 or so bargaining unit employees will transfer to the new location.

The nearly 200 clerical and support staff bargaining unit employees showed extraordinary solidarity to get this deal done. They wore red Local 153 shirts that read “This Place Works Because We Do” when negotiation sessions were taking place, at the university picnic and during negotiations.

LCLAA Goes to Washington to Protest Environmental Racism

Local 298 President Terri Ramos recently participated in the Labor Council for Latin American Advancement (LCLAA) Advocacy Day on Capitol Hill to defend one of our nation’s oldest and most important environmental laws, the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA).

NEPA provides a voice for workers and vulnerable communities in the planning of major government construction projects by requiring governmental transparency, impact assessment and allowing for public comment so communities can have a part in rejecting, approving or improving projects. According to LCLAA, NEPA is crucial for Latino working people and their families as they tend to be among those most impacted by federal projects. Latino workers account for more than 43 percent of ground, maintenance and construction workers and up to 75 percent of agricultural laborers.

“After more than 150 attacks on NEPA in each of the last three Congresses, our allies warned us that NEPA might be targeted by the Trump administration for a full, frontal attack,” said LCLAA Executive Director Hector Sanchez. “An attack on NEPA is an attack on our communities because NEPA is what allows us to fight environmental racism and push ideas that should be on the table during the permitting process, such as labor conditions for the construction of the project, or even human rights conditions for immigrants in the case of proposed detention facilities.”
